UNIVERSITY LINZ

AIMS:

This conference is dedicated to the newest scientific results, methodological and technological advancements, and the most relevant applications of LIBS. According to the tradition of EMSLIBS symposia, researchers from academia and industry are invited to participate and exchange their knowledge on LIBS. Social events will be organized to promote informal discussions.

TOPICS:

- Applications of LIBS (industrial, environmental, biological, security, mineralogical, forensic, cultural heritage, extra-terrest.)
- Fundamental aspects of LIBS (laser induced plasma characterization and modelling, multi-pulse, ultrafast and other excitations)
- Novel approaches to analytical LIBS
- Instrumentation and technology for LIBS (advanced spectrometers, lasers, detectors, data processing & chemometrics)

PUBLICATION:

Selected contributions to the conference will be published in Spectrochimica Acta Part B after peer-review.

LOCATION:

EMSLIBS 2015 will be hosted by the Johannes Kepler University in Linz (Austria). Linz has an international airport and is located halfway between Vienna and Munich with excellent travel connections in both directions. The university campus is easily reached from the city center by public and private transportation. Hotels are available in 10 minutes walking distance to the university campus and the venue.

Organization:

Chair: Johannes D. Pedarnig, Johannes Kepler University Linz, Austria
Co-chair: Alessandro De Giacomo, University of Bari, Italy
Co-chair: Johannes Heitz, Johannes Kepler University Linz, Austria
